AGRICULTURE & KENYA

Kenya's agriculture sector directly influences overall economic performance through its contribution to GDP. Periods of high economic growth rates have been synonymous with increased agricultural growth. Several untapped crops cultivation in Kenya affect African Economy - Tea, Coffee, Sugar, Horticulture, Floriculture, Cotton, Macadamia Nuts, etc.

Presence of R&D Centers, Agricultural Infrastructure, Agricultural University, Government support, initiative by NGOs and other associations has made Kenya a unique choice for such a international exhibition on Agriculture Technologies.

Kenya is a leading producer of tea and coffee, as well as third leading exporter of fresh produce, such as cabbage, onions and mangoes. Small farms grow most of the corn and also produce potatoes, beans and peas.

Govt. of Kenya is currently implementing Strategy for Revitalizing Agriculture (SRA) with the intention to "transform Kenya's agriculture into profitable, commercially oriented and internationally and regionally competitive economic activity that provides high quality gainful employment to Kenyans". The strategic areas include:

- 1) Streamlining agricultural policy framework
- 2) Creating an enabling environment for the private sector
- 3) Improving delivery of support services
- 4) Promoting Marketing, Agro - Processing and trade
- 5) Main streaming agriculture development issues in other # sectors
- 6) Strengthening institutional implementation & monitoring frameworks

ABOUT KENYA

The economy of Kenya is the largest by GDP in East and Central Africa. Agriculture is a major employer and the country traditionally exports tea, coffee and most recently fresh flowers to the Europe. The service industry is a major economic driver. Kenya's monsoon season starts during April to June, after which 'short rains' season prevails till November. Currently Kenya is aiming to create a globally competitive and prosperous nation with a high quality of life by 'Vision 2030'. The vision is anchored on three key pillars; economic, social and political governance.
